CONCEPT:

This event is about Organizational Development and the ability to collectively complete a collaborative challenge combining the use of technology and the human element.

We create a custom storyline, based on relevancy to you and your group and the event takes off from there. Participant skill sets are revealed through the self-organization of teams and the exploration of situational leadership comes to life.

The event is infused with the release of new data and technologies throughout the simulation and is designed with difficulty in mind that can be altered for any group. We eliminate direct and defined competition, and instead frame our facilitation to meet the collaborative element in mind.

Team structures, roles and responsibilities is purposely vague and up to the collective to determine what is working and what is not working to be effective,

RETURN ON YOUR INVESTMENT:

- Participants feel valued and rewarded
- They enjoy building stronger connections with co-workers.
- Participants will learn first hand the behaviors that help and hinder the team from accomplishing a defined goal.
